Level/Year	English Prep.
Type	Compulsory (Dep.)
Prerequisites	PREPR100
Description	The aim of this course is to introduce students to the world of politics and international affairs in English. All work is based on what students already know (in their first language) about relevant basic concepts and institutions. By the end of this course, students will be well-prepared to study Politics and International Relations at the faculty level.
Objectives

- Helping students to read short, authentic, texts in the fields of politics and international relations;
- Expanding students' vocabulary associated with current events;
- Improving learners' English knowledge of the world of political geography;
- Showing students how to articulate basic ideas and facts with which they are already familiar in their first language, thus boosting both their English expression range and confidence;
- Encouragin students to learn more vocabulary and to follow their interests in a more self-directed manner.

Learning Outcomes	By the end of this course, students will be able to:
	LO1. read short, non-academic, level-appropriate texts written in English;
	LO2. demonstrate comprehension of fundamental vocabulary related to politics and international relations;
	LO3. comprehend world place names and nationalities in English
	LO4. talk about course themes and take part in class discussions;
	LO5 embark on further studies in politics and international relations in English by means of both guided and self-directed research.
